

Fox NewsFox BusinessuReportFox News RadioFox News LatinoFox NationFox News InsiderLogin

Search

ON AIR NOW >

FOX & Friends

WATCH LIVE

America's Newsroom

Hosted by Martha MacCallum & Bill H...

On Air Personalities >

Listen to Fox News Radio Live >

Home

Video

Politics

U.S.

Opinion

Entertainment

Tech

Science

Health

Travel

Lifestyle

World

Sports

On Air

for the BOLD & Beautiful

Men's Health

Women's Health

Children's Health

Alternative Medicine

Diabetes

Heart Health

Allergies

Nutrition & Fitness

More children born from sperm donors seeking out genetic family

By Amanda Woerner / Published January 24, 2014 / FoxNews.com

John Robbart, 23, used the Donor Sibling Registry to find his two half-sisters and connected with his sperm donor via Facebook.

Print

Email

Share

Like 231

Tweet 75

Share 8

RELATED STORIES

Dr. Manny: Can a man have 533 children?

John Robbart, a 23-year-old from San Diego, Calif., has known he was conceived using a sperm donor for as long as he can remember. But, it wasn't until a few years ago, after he joined the U.S. Marines and was about to be deployed, that Robbart decided to seek out the man who shared half of his DNA.

"I wasn't really looking for anyone to teach me how to shave or throw a baseball anymore, those parts of my life are over," Robbart, who was raised by two lesbian mothers, told FoxNews.com. "But I was looking for someone to mentor me a bit and to fill that curiosity that I've always felt since I was a young boy."

Through the Donor Sibling Registry, a non-profit web site that seeks to connect people with their donors or half-siblings, Robbart had already been in touch with two of his half-sisters, who had been born from the same donor's sperm. When Robbart decided to seek out his donor, he turned to Google.

"[My biological mother] had his name, and with the power of Google, you can pretty much find a picture of anything," Robbart said. "I went on YouTube and found a video of him talking, and [then] I found him on Facebook."

Eventually, Robbart was able to meet his father face-to-face.

"When I met my dad, it was kind of like looking in the mirror," Robbart said.

'Build it and they will come'

Reports of children tracking down their sperm donors and

TOP HEALTH CENTERS

Back Pain	Heart Disease
Beauty & Skin	Nutrition
Cancer	Pain Management
Cold and Flu	Pregnancy
Depression	Sexual Health
Digestive Health

View All Health Centers »

FOLLOW FOX NEWS HEALTH

Get Our Free Newsletter

Enter Email Address

Sign Up

Like 38k

Follow @foxnewshealth

LATEST HEALTH VIDEOS

DIGITAL MD

More Video»

Are your beauty products safe?

App tracks stress levels

Q&A MANNY ALVAREZ, MD

More Video»

Protect your baby this winter

How to prevent frostbite

nutrition & fitness

More Video»

Overcoming binge eating

Companies hiding MSG in their products

TRENDING IN HEALTH

1 Poor sleep quality may accelerate cancer growth, study finds half-siblings have become increasingly common in recent years, as more young people use resources like Facebook, Google and the Donor Sibling Registry to track down their genetic relatives.

In 2003, when FoxNews.com first reported on the Donor Sibling Registry, the site had produced only 70 matches and had fewer than 2,000 members. But by 2007, membership had grown to 16,000 – and as of 2013 the site claims 42,000 registered users.

Wendy Kramer founded the registry in 2000 to help her own son get in touch with his donor. She said media attention and recent films like “Delivery Man,” starring Vince Vaughn, and the MTV show, “Generation Cryo,” have boosted visits to the online registry – making people feel more comfortable about seeking out information on their donor.

“The more we got that word out there, that not only did they have the right to be curious, search and connect, but that there was a vehicle to do that... what we did is one of those ‘build it and they will come’ things,” Kramer, author of the book Finding Our Families, told FoxNews.com.

Now, nearly 70 percent of all people who sign up for the Donor Sibling Registry successfully match with a genetic relative – with an average wait time of only 116 days.

A largely unregulated industry

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) exercises little control over the sperm and egg donation industries. It was only in 2005 that they began to require donors be screened for a variety of health risks.

When asked by FoxNews.com, representatives from both the FDA and the American Society for Reproductive Medicine said they have no data regarding the number of children born from sperm donors in the United States.

As a result, sites like the Donor Sibling Registry have stepped in to fill the gap – and in the process, they have ended up unofficially policing the industry.

Kramer said stories like the one told in the film “Delivery Man,” in which Vince Vaughn’s character finds out his sperm donations resulted in 533 children, are no laughing matter – and may not be far from the truth.

“I thought when I went into it, it’s a medical community. It’s a doctor, and of course they follow medical ethics. We were wrong. They are sperm sellers,” Kramer said. “There’s no oversight, no regulation,

2 Man dies after 8 hours in ER waiting room

3 Exposure to DDT pesticide may increase Alzheimer’s risk, study finds

4 The meal that’s even worse than fast food

5 Sperm’s ‘swimming pool’ may affect health of offspring

See all trends

Flights to Baltimore, MD

united.com

Fly to Baltimore, Maryland and Get Our Guaranteed Lowest Fare.

California Cryobank

www.cryobank.com

Become a Parent : Free Donor Info Leading Worldwide Sperm Bank 30 Yrs

nobody watching, so there's nobody demanding record keeping."

Kramer said she's experienced resistance from sperm banks, who wish to maintain the anonymity of clients and avoid regulations that might put a damper on their for-profit businesses. However, Kramer said egg donation clinics and agencies have been more willing to cooperate.

"We have probably 25 or more clinics and egg agencies that are now writing the Donor Sibling Registry into their contracts. Donors and recipients have contact with each other on the website right from the beginning. They can share and update information with each other, anonymously if they want," Kramer said. "Not one sperm bank has done this."

Kramer said she'd like to see sperm and egg donation clinics keep more accurate records, properly counsel recipients and donors, and update and share medical records. She also noted that she hopes they begin limiting the number of children per donor – and eventually end donor anonymity altogether.

Until then, Kramer said she'll continue to help donors and siblings share their stories.

"What it does ultimately is keep it as a public conversation, keeps it relevant, keeps the sperm banking and egg industry on their toes. Because people are talking about it, telling their stories and watching," Kramer said.

As for Robbart, who has developed a good relationship with his biological father, he hopes the Donor Sibling Registry will help more people connect their half-siblings with their donors.

"I wish that there was at least a way to know...are there many more out there?" Robbart said. "...I'd love to meet them if they are out there."

ALSO ON THE WEB

- Why Your Ethernet Could Be the Reason For Slow Networking (Tech Page One)
- Celebrity house for sale: Tim McGraw and Faith Hill (Bankrate)
- New Study: Migraine is NOT a headache: check your symptoms (Migraine.com)
- 10 Signs You May Be in an Emotionally Abusive Relationship (Health Central)
- How CVS Caremark is Reinventing the Pharmacy (CVS Caremark)
- New Rule Hits Colorado (Lifestyle Journal)

MORE FROM FOX NEWS

- Raiders cheerleader lawsuit claims pay is less than $5 an hour
- Man struck, killed by Amtrak train while posing for pictures
- Melissa Gilbert talks Tom Cruise romance and why she wants to 'punch' Shannen Doherty
- Forgiving my "worthless" father
- Woman gives birth to 15-pound baby in California
- Doctor Breaks Neck, Sees Reality of Hospital Care

[What's This?]

SHARE THIS ARTICLE

231

Like

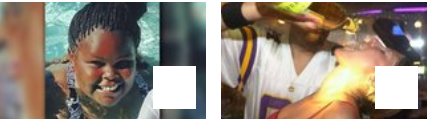

75

Tweet

38

+1

FOX NEWS VIDEO

Could Jahi McMath make a miracle recovery?

New study shows the long term damage of alcohol

SPONSORED FROM AROUND THE WEB

New Testosterone Booster Hits the Shelves

Must Have Appliances Being Sold For Next To Nothing

5 Warning Signs That Cancer Is Starting in Your Body

Little Known Way to Pay Off Mortgage

How Cruise Ships Fill Their Unsold Cabins

ALSO ON THE WEB

AskMen

Exercise And Eating Connection

The ROI Of Getting In Shape

Fitness Tips

F1: Belgium 2013

Picking Up Women At The Gym

Health.com

10 Signs You May Have OCD

Stop Multitasking Now! Here's Why

14 Foods That Fight Inflammation

Easy Ways to Lose Weight Fast

20 Snacks That Burn Fat

REAL SIMPLE™

Breast Cancer Exams and Screenings

10 Tips to Make Your Mammogram and Colonoscopy Easier

The Facts About Breast Cancer

Online Resources for Breast Cancer Information

CookingLight

Vanilla Beauty Products

Cinnamon-Infused Beauty Products

Almond Beauty Products

Fig Beauty Products

Ginger-Infused Beauty Products

newsmaxhealth

NewsmaxTV: Allen West, Dick Morris Respond to Obama

Garlic: Ancient Cure Now Backed by Science

Enzyme Supplements Help Digestive Health

Dartmouth Researchers Build Better Mammogram

Weight-Loss Surgery: What You Need to Know

SECTIONS	SHOWS	TOOLS	ABOUT	FOLLOW
Home	A Healthy You & Carol Alt	Justice with Judge Jeanine	Careers	Facebook
Video	America's News HQ	Media Buzz	College Students	Twitter
Politics	America's Newsroom	Red Eye w/ Gutfeld	Fox Around the World	Google+
U.S.	Cavuto	Shepard Smith Reporting	Advertise With Us	LinkedIn
Opinion	Fox Files	Special Report	Terms of Use	RSS
Entertainment	Fox News Sunday	Specials	Privacy Policy	Newsletters
Tech	Fox & Friends First	The Cost of Freedom	Ad Choices
Science	Fox & Friends	The Five	Contact Us
Health	Fox & Friends Weekend	The Journal Editorial Report	Email Newsroom
Travel	Geraldo at Large	The Kelly File	FAQ
Lifestyle	Greta	The O' Reilly Factor	Media Relations
World	Hannity	The Real Story

Sports
Weather

Happening Now
Huckabee

War Stories

This material may not be published, broadcast, rewritten, or redistributed. ©2014 FOX News Network, LLC. All rights reserved. All market data delayed 20 minutes.